I began my lifelong love of art at an early age; focused primarily on Design. I became the lone Aggie amongst a family of UT graduates, earning my degree in Architecture. After graduation, I explored a more technical arena, bringing my problem solving skills to build a rewarding career in industrial process automation.

In recent years, as our two sons left for college, I've rediscovered my love for painting. I enjoy painting in a variety of mediums, especially acrylic and watercolor. In the hot Texas summers, I'm a studio artist, but I enjoy plein air painting in the cooler months. I've been honored to have my work shared in galleries and museums across Texas.

My art is my passion and is a form of self-discovery. The beauty and diversity of the Texas landscape has its own unique language. My art seeks to provide a respite from the frantic pace of urban life, by inviting others to experience nature through my eyes.
